

During an enormously intense political climate, where the entire country is currently divided, especially during the last two weeks of an election, air on public airwaves a clearly partisan campaign that has a possibility to sway the outcome of this extremely tight election then mask it by calling it "news" is outrageous. As a responsibility to the public, integrity to journalism, and being a channel where democracy can grow and where the public expects non bias factual accounts, Sinclair, unfortunately, has taken us backwards with undertones of the Stalinist era. How you take action knowingly on partisan agendas and not permitting the other side with equal time is not fair and balanced news. It is outright partisan propaganda arriving at a perfect time in millions of homes this week. Sinclair's airing of "Stolen Honor" is rightly named after what it has done to American democracy. Thank you.
